"THE SPY RING" COMING TO THE REX

GANGES, Sept. 13.—Death stalking his every move, and denied by military necessity all protection of the government he serves, William Hall, as the secret service captain, has the greatest and most thrilling role of his career in Universal's smashing mystery story, "The Spy Ring," showing at the Rex Theatre, Ganges, Friday and Saturday, this week.

By a strange quirk of fate, Hall in real life studied for the American diplomatic service at Georgetown University in the nation's capital, then gave up the chance for a consular post to skyrocket into prominence on stage, radio and screen as one of the most popular action heroes of all time.

Cast as the quick-witted Captain Todd Hayden in the spine-tingling story, "The Spy Ring," Hall's knowledge of inner workings of the secret service proved of high value to director Joseph Lewis. Acting on suggestions by Hall, Lewis injected many novel and surprising situations into the drama that has the punch and tempo of a dozen detective thrillers rolled into one.

With two beautiful women plotting against his life, Hall is called on to make lightning-quick decisions of such staggering importance that they affect the safety of millions.

Rival foreign powers are battling for control of a secret formula for manufacture of a sensational anti-aircraft gun. Aided by the lovely heroine, Jane Wyman, Hall fights a lone battle against mysterious and ruthless enemies to win victory in the name of the United States, and retain the patent exclusive to American armed forces.

Rich in the flavor and color of continental intrigue, and played against the glamorous, romantic background of diplomatic and social life, "The Spy Ring" is based on a thrilling story and screenplay by George Waggoner and was produced for Universal by Trem Carr.

Prominently featured in the strong supporting cast are Jane Wyman, Jane Carleton, Jack Mulhall, Ben Alexander, Philip Trent and Roy Mason.

FIRE ON INDIAN RESERVE

At 3:30 Monday morning the fire siren sounded and the fire brigade boys jumped out of bed and into their clothes and dashed to the fire hall and in a few minutes were on their way to the Indian reserve at Patricia Bay.

Although it was pitch black in the dead of night the flames of the fire could be seen for miles above the trees surrounding the outbreak.

Peter Jack's residence, a few hundred yards off the West Road, was completely destroyed. It was unoccupied and the origin of the fire is unknown. Peter Jack and his wife were living in a smaller house a short distance up the West Road from the scene of the fire and were awakened by the light on their window. When Jack investigated he learned that his large building was a mass of flames and feared that the blaze would spread to a nearby barn where he had his automobile stored. He ran all the way to Mr. Lambert's on the West Road, next Downey Road, a distance of almost a mile, to phone telephone central. In the meantime Tom Gorton had turned in an alarm after he awoke and saw the flames from his residence approximately a mile away to the south.

The fire brigade boys soon had two streams of water on the fire and prevented same from reaching the barn or getting a hold in the timber back of Ernie Munro's place. It took hundreds of feet of hose to reach the sea, but the pump, under the handling of Art Gardner, purred away unceasingly and soon Firechief Tom Morgan and his fire fighters extinguished the burning grass and trees and drenched the red-hot place where the house once stood.

Great credit is due the fire brigade boys for the smart turnout made in the middle of the night. Very few citizens in the vicinity of the fire knew anything about it till the following day. The brigade members, with the exception of two or three citizens and a few Indians, were the only ones at the fire.

The minutes and financial statement were read and passed, the latter showed over $28 in the bank.
